Sons of Murdered

A BLOODY HISTORY

Marshal Wounded Last
Christmas Eve—Guard
Called Out Then

MARSHALL, Ark. — While funeral services were being held Sunday for John H. Barnett, aged 62, city marshal here for several years, who was killed by an assassin's bullets Saturday night, his two sons, Rupert and Oscar Barnett, 24 and 29, respectively, were reported driving around in an automobile looking for the murderer.

They were said to have had several guns in their car. Accompanying them was a friend.

The funeral of the picturesque officer attracted a large crowd. Barnett was known throughout Sevier and adjoining counties, and had many friends. Many attended the funeral from curiosity. The body was buried in Osborn cemetery, 18 miles from Marshall.

No Arrests Made
There were no arrests Sunday in connection with the slaying, although the sheriff said he had several clues. Soon after the shooting Saturday night, he asked the assistance of officers in adjoining counties. Several responded, including Sheriff Hatchett of Cleburne county, but none remained here long.

After an all-night investigation, a jury empaneled by Dr. E. G. Fendley of Leslie, corner, returned a verdict of death at the hands of "unknown parties."

Barnett was struck by 12 No. 30 pellets from a shotgun. He died at once. His pistol still was in its holster when the body was taken to the morgue, indicating that he had no warning of the gunfire.

The killer was standing at a corner of the public square, near Noah Bryant's store, when the shots were fired. Three empty shells were found there Sunday morning. It was at this same spot that the murderer of Barnett's son, Vance Barnett, stood two years ago when Vance was ambushed. Barnett was about 30 steps from the corner.

After Barnett had been killed several window in the downtown section of Marshall were shot out. However, officers thus far have found no one who could identify the shooter.

Wounded Last Christmas

The marshal was wounded last Christmas eve in a pitched battle here with his two sons, Rupert and Oscar, sought to arrest members of the Henley family, barricaded in a building from which a son of the marshal declared he was fired upon.

Although Leland Henley, serving a life sentence for murder at Tucker prison farm, was visiting his mother here on a Christmas furlough, Marshal Barnett declined to say whether he participated in the battle. National Guardsmen were called out to preserve order, but were unsuccessful in efforts to effect a truce which would have provided for one member of each family leaving the country. Articles were drawn up but never were signed.

Leland Henley's furlough expired early in January and he was declared an escaped convict. He never has returned to the prison farm, and reportedly has been making his home in the West.

Leland Henley was convicted of the slaying of W. W. Fendley, merchant and former sheriff, as he walked along the street here with Marshal Barnett more than a year ago. Fendley was killed by a burst of fire from a second floor window across the street and Barnett sustained a wound in the wrist.

Leland Henley was a candidate for sheriff of Stone county at one time, but was defeated after he had sought court action to investigate the election.

Rupert Barnett figured in a shooting here several months ago when a restaurant proprietor was slain.

Mayor Smith witnessed the shooting of Barnett Saturday night. He said several flashes of fire came from the courtyard and another burst from a nearby building. Several men were about the courtyard, he said. The firing attracted nearby residents, but officers prevented a crowd gathering.

From a record low of 181,000 motor vehicles sold outside the United States in 1932, there was an increase to 240,000 units in 1933.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. — R. E. Rice, farmer of this county, last week marketed 670 pounds of pork. He sent the pigs to a market in St. Louis.

Friday he received his check, and Saturday he went to a local store, bought one pound of bacon, costing 18 cents, the total amount he received for the 670 pounds he sold. The rest went for yardage, insurance, commission and drayage.

Something is wrong, of course. It is experiences like this, occurring to all the producers of America, which inspire the demand for a "redistribution of wealth."

But the saddest part of it is that if the government should arbitrarily "redistribute wealth" the citizens wouldn't accept that "wealth" as a right.

Take the packing companies, for instance. The pork that this Missouri farmer sold at Poplar Bluff, ultimately went to the big packers—and if the farmer was robbed it is presumed somebody profited by that robbery. But the financial statements of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., the two biggest packers, have come across my desk for many years. They have taken a terrible beating during the panic—the worst losses of any of the big corporations. They haven't paid any dividends during the panic and until last year their surpluses were going down hill.

X X X
The trouble with the packers is that they undertake to buy every pound of meat that is offered on the American market. They have to do that to stay in business—the first time a pound of good meat was rejected their potential supply of meat on the hoof would begin to diminish.

The same condition exists in the cotton market. We call cotton our great "cash crop" because we know that it will command a sale at some price or other no matter how much is offered, and no matter when it comes on the market. The first time cotton was left without a buyer at any price the potential annual supply of American cotton would begin to decline.

Both meat and cotton make big money for the producer and processor in good times—and both meat and cotton take the processor to a cleaning in hard times, carrying the poor producer along with his richer brother.

If the farmers of America should take over the big packing companies they would have to operate substantially as the big packers now operate, in order to service the trade where the finished product is actually sold—and common sense tells us that the average man wouldn't be likely to improve conditions in a business where millionaires have lost millions.

Everybody remembers the case of J. Ogden Armour, packing king, who dropped a million dollars a day for 130 days—and went broke.

The raw products' business makes big money for everybody in good times—and loses plenty of money for everybody in hard times.

Whether they are making money or losing money boils down eventually to the question of how much of the finished product is being actually sold to the ultimate consumer.

X X X
America has been "holding" cotton for several years because she is producing more than is being actually sold and turned into textiles.

Cotton is in somewhat better condition than the meat business, for the simple reason that meat, being perishable, can't be held indefinitely without ruinous refrigeration costs.

It is time we got our mind off the dangerous speculation of trying to "hold" crops—and got down to the business of making more actual sales to the ultimate consumer.

And when we look into this matter

Arkansas Swept by Torrential Rain

3.11 Rainfall at

Corn and Truck Crops
Benefitted—More Rain
Is Forecast

A torrential rain drenched all of Arkansas Sunday night and Monday, with the heaviest and one of the lightest precipitation points being only 17 miles apart.

The Associated Press reported 3.11 inches precipitation at Prescott, while the rainfall for the Hope area was only .83 inch, according to the official instruments of the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station.

The storm was general, sweeping into Hempstead county on the heels of a powerful wind out of the northeast. Corn and truck crops were greatly benefited, farmers reporting the corn crop virtually assured with the rains of the past week.

The forecast is for additional showers Monday night and possibly Tuesday.

Considerable Damage
FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — (P) — Winds of tornado proportions which swept northwest Arkansas Sunday night left damage in their wake Monday which may run to several hundred thousand dollars.

The heaviest rainfall in the state was at Prescott, with 3.11 inches.

There was severe damage to orchards, particularly peaches.

Several hundred buildings were unroofed or destroyed in the vicinity of Fayetteville.

The rainfall was 2.21 inches at Fayetteville, 2 inches at Bentonville, and 1.2 at Texarkana.

The rain, however, was highly beneficial to sections where dry weather was beginning to damage the crops.

Urges a Central School ControlDr. J. H. Reynolds Declares for Single Tax-
Supported Unit

HORSESHOE LODGE, Ark. — A recommendation that all tax-supported colleges in the state be placed under one central board of trustees, with one president whose office would be in Little Rock, and that a central supervisory board be established for all colleges, both church and state, was made by Dr. J. H. Reynolds, president of Hendrix College, Conway, in an address here Sunday at the opening session of the annual Peoples Conference on Government.

Discussing "Some Problems of Arkansas Education," Dr. Reynolds, said in part:

"All tax-supported colleges should be declared one institution, probably named the University of Arkansas, operating in different places and performing special functions assigned. Oklahoma is even proposing to embrace church colleges in this larger institution of higher learning."

"All degrees should be conferred in the name of the university, merely giving in a corner the name of the unit where the college work was done."

"The president and Board of Trustees will differentiate and allocate functions of higher education among the respective units, prescribe its course of study, select its faculty and see that each school does the specific work assigned it."

"The board and president will make up the budget for all the units and they alone will represent this budget before the legislature. No member of the staff of any unit will appear before the legislature to lobby for one of these schools."

"A school now attempting three or four different lines of work under the new plan probably will be limited to one field but it will do a much higher order of work."

"The new plan will foster the largest possible co-operation between state institutions and church-related colleges."

Dr. Reynolds pointed out that Arkansas has seven church-related colleges with a total worth of about $5,000,000, while the state has 13 tax-supported institutions of higher learning with a total value of buildings and grounds of $5,393,466, to which the federal government loans will add about $3,671,000, making a total of $9,064,466.

This Spring Is the Wettest in Hempstead Co. Since 19282 Inches Heavier Than 5-Year Average, and Close to Average Mark for 60 Years

The first five months of 1934 in Hempstead county have been wetter than the average for the last six years—reversing a 60-year trend which shows the average annual rainfall to have been declining.

George W. Ware, assistant director in charge of the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station, has a 60-year precipitation table which shows Hempstead county to have an average annual rainfall of 51.37 inches.

On the 60-year average, the first five months of the year show a precipitation of 24.47 inches.

But the five years from 1928 through 1932 show for these same five months an average of only 21.70 inches.

The first five months of this year, however, show a precipitation of 23.71 inches heavier than the 5-year average, and less than 1 inch behind the 60-year average.

The greatest gain this year over the 5-year average was in March, April and May. The 5-year average for these three months was 11.37 inches of rain, while for this year the three months showed 15.14—a gain of nearly 4 inches, or more than an inch a month.

Shotgun wounds received three months ago, caused the death here Sunday night of Mrs. L. H. Coleman, 53, of Idabel, Okla.

She died about 8 o'clock at the home of a son, Jim Coleman, North Hamilton street.

Mrs. Coleman was shot accidentally by a 12-year-old son, Walter, when he brushed against the gun, causing it to discharge as it struck the floor.

Sixty-four pellets entered her right foot and leg. She was brought to Julia Chester hospital for an operation. Improved, she was returned to her home in Idabel.

Several weeks later complications set up and she was again brought to the hospital for removal of several shots which were not extracted at the time of the accident.

She was discharged from the hospital last Tuesday, being removed to the home of Jim Coleman. Her condition grew worse Sunday, causing her death.

Mrs. Coleman resided with another son, Roy, on the Hope-Washington road until about six months ago, removing from Hempstead county to Idabel.

An Idabel ambulance returned the body to her home Monday.

Tugwell Defends
Self to SenatorsConfirmation Hang's in Balance—Congress to Adjourn Saturday

WASHINGTON, (P) — Rexford G. Tugwell, nominated as Undersecretary of Agriculture, determinedly defended the administration's efforts to have congress strengthen the Agricultural Adjustment Act (AAA) at a senate hearing held Monday to hear his recitation of experience and qualifications.

The senate demanded a report by Tuesday.

Tugwell's statements gave rise to session within the committee, and there was disorder in the meeting room.

To Adjourn Saturday
WASHINGTON, (P) — Adjournment of congress Saturday became the goal of Democratic leaders Sunday as they began plans to dump overboard some administration-favored measures.

It was learned that Vice President Garner had made reservations to leave by train, June 16 for his home at Uvalde, Texas.

Party leaders said the only barrier that stood in the way of ending the session Saturday was a situation that might develop over the steel strike. In that case, they conceded, an effort would be made to obtain quick action on a modification of the Wagner labor dispute bill.

Two Measures Shelved
Two important measures—those giving Secretary Ickes and Secretary Wallace added power over the oil and agriculture industries—were said by one committee chairman to have been definitely shelved for this session. Only direct pressure from President Roosevelt will bring them out of committee. If they should reach the house and senate floors, advocates admit, they would prolong the session for week's vaude of their controversial nature.

A party leader said that with passage of the silver bill—to be voted on in the senate Monday—the $117,000,000 deficiency, the $225,000,000 drought relief, and housing bills, congress would be ready to quit. However, the senate has some treaties to consider and both branches have yet to act on conference reports on the deposit insurance and industry loan bills.

Assurance of Average Citizen of Proper Hospitalization Is Approved as a Voluntary Program

CHICAGO.—A set of principles to be applied to the voluntary, pre-payment health insurance plan designed to assure the average citizen of limited means of proper hospitalization and medical care was approved by the Board of Regents of the American College of Surgeons, which met here.

It was the first public announcement by the college of its attitude on this matter which has been the subject of controversy among medical circles. The report was submitted by a committee of the Medical Service Board of the college. Health insurance or group hospitalization plans have, in the past, evoked bitter opposition from medical leaders because "certain features of the plans were incompatible with medical ethics."

Declaring that the college believes it is the duty of the medical profession to assume leadership in the movement to control all measures directed to that end, the report said encouragement should be given to the trial of new methods.

For immediate study of the problem, the report divided the population into four groups: The indigent, care of which, the report said, should be a direct obligation on the community; the uneducated and credulous, who should be educated through co-operation of medical groups; those of limited resources who, unaided, are unable to meet medical expenses, and will benefit by the insurance plan, and those living in remote districts where adequate medical service is not obtainable.

Proposed Principles.
The principles outlined in the report were as follows:

Hitler Is Praised
by the Ex-KaiserWilhelm Compares Japs in China With British in India

LONDON, Eng. — (P) — Praise for Chancellor Hitler's "marvelous work" was expressed by former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany in an interview of the Daily Mail Sunday.

At Doorn, Holland, his majesty received Randolph Churchill, son of the former British chancellor of the exchequer. Randolph is a staff correspondent of the Daily Mail.

He described his majesty as lively and engaging, with an alertness suggestion an age 15 years younger than his actual 75.

"The German people have turned me out," the former Kaiser said. "If they want me back they will have to come and fetch me."

"Hitler has done marvelous work in putting new life and soul into the German nation. If ever they felt it right that his endeavors should be crowned by a return to a constitutional monarchy, I am sure that my family would not fail in their duty."

Wilhelm's conversations covered a wide range of subjects. He spoke with horrified amazement at the "folly" of the world attempting to restore prices by destroying goods.

"A large acreage of wheat has been deliberately destroyed in Argentina and elsewhere," he exclaimed. "Coffee has been taken into sea and sunk in Brazil. And now drought threatens all of us with famine."

The former kaiser was much impressed by the increasing power of Japan.

"Japan," he said "is as capable of giving peace and order in China as the British were of giving them in India. It is useless to think that they will not do so."

"Moreover, Japan constitutes in the East a bulwark against bolshevism as strong as Germany provides in the West."

Amusedly contemptuous of what he called "the talking circus" at Geneva, he said words of the League of Nations and representatives of the League "does nothing but bring international co-operation into ridicule."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

By Olive Roberts Barton

Hi-Feeling Among Neighbors May Be Smoothed By Friendly Visits

"I have some neighbors," writes a mother, "who make life very hard for our family."

"We have two boys and they have two girls."

"Our boys are nice children, or at least we think they are, but you never can tell what boys are going to do next. And their girls are pretty touchy, I think."

"It seems to me that they are always looking for trouble and they blame the boys for everything."

"One day their Joan had on new white shoes and our Mark stamped in some gutter water when she was crossing the street and splashed them all over with mud. He just did it to be devilish, but if she had treated him decently and not turned up her nose, he would have laid down his way for her to step on. That's the way he is."

He would do anything for anybody, but if they're mean he'll get even every time."

The Feud Is On

"Her mother called me up and talked terribly. I told her I was sorry but if she would send the shoes over I would clean them."

"I made Mark go and get them. But when Joan opened the door she said, 'You mean little devil. Get out of here. I wouldn't trust my shoes in your house. You'd put ink on them.'"

"They had their lawn fixed with new ground and seeded and rolled flat. There were ropes all around."

"Mark stepped over the rope and walked right across. It had been raining and it was soft. He sank three inches at every step."

"That same afternoon, Corry, our youngest boy, passed Marty on the street and he gave a raspberry to the youngsters call it. She ran after him and kicked him. I don't blame her, but the truth is that our boys hate these girls because the girls always make them feel like dirt."

"And the girls aren't perfect. I know very well they picked some of our lilies to take to their teachers. They have a hand ball that rolls over in my yard, too, and it hit the biggest peony bush and broke down about half the stems, all ready to bloom."

"I think it's about even, but they tell the whole neighborhood what terrible people we are. We can't move because it's our own house."

"What would you do?"

"You cannot keep on apologizing forever and I don't think it necessary. The accounts are about even."

But it often happens that children don't get along when the parents are not friends. Why?"

"Don't you and your husband go to call, if possible, not with blood in your eye, but just to be neighborly? Or if your husband won't go, go alone."

Neighbors as Friends

Sometimes you might try a small mixed party and ask the girls in. Get the boys to put their hurt feelings in storage and ask their co-operation in being real cavaliers to the girls for once. Girls are funny that way. They pretend to hate boys. But they are susceptible to attention. Once they like a boy they will take any impulsive action as a joke."

It is hard to have to make the advances to people who seem so vindictive, but you will probably find them more friendly and human than you think. The reason for most neighborhood quarrels is strategy. There is too little unity today among neighbors. Then they grow suspicious and carry chips. But I doubt if they ever quite forgive you for that spoiled lawn. However, if any one said to me what Joan said to Mark, I'd have stomped up that lawn, too."

Home Clubs

cost me."

"Poor Madeline," Donna murmured. "And how she adored you! You did send her to her death. I can never forgive you for that. You knew she hadn't the gift you had, yet you—"

"Through you, of course. Don't say it can't be done. I'll leave you to figure it out as best you can, but in some way you are going to invite me to visit the farm and I'm going to stay there until I'm on my feet again. And—"

"He leaped closer. 'I'm going to see that you don't get that will changed. Any monkey business and I'll tip off your beloved Bill to the truth!'"

"So it's blackmail!"

"I wouldn't call it that."

"I do. Well, I shall invite you to the farm and I'll use every bit of persuasion I can to get Grandfather Siddal to make out a new will in favor of my husband—not because I want the farm for myself nor because Bill couldn't get along without it, but to keep you from getting something you have no right to."

"That's final!"

"Absolutely!"

"You know what I can do to you?"

"I know what you think you can do. Go ahead! It happens that both my husband and grandfather love me. They'll believe my word against yours."

"I hardly think so, but we'll see. 'You're getting out here,' Donna said, stopping the machine at the corner. Cold, devastating fury made her oblivious to the danger of being seen with him."

"Thanks so much for the lift," Con drawled sarcastically. He stepped out of the car, carefully avoiding a snowdrift, and tipped his hat.

THE clock in the courthouse chimed four times. In the storm Donna knew it would take the better part of an hour to reach the farm. How foolish she had been to come, since nothing had been gained by the risk! Of course Con's threats were just words. He was a coward and he would never go to Bill.

But if he should go to Bill she would lie. Lie to the last breath! Oh, God, if only she had never become tangled in such a mesh of lies! The truth seemed so dreadful as Con put it. How could she account to Bill for her silence during all those weeks when he had hesitated to ask her to marry him because he believed they were related? Bill would find that harder to forgive than anything. Keeping the knowledge of Madeline's death a secret seemed terrible, too. It did make it look as though she wanted to inherit the farm.

She couldn't ask Grandfather if he had left everything to her. What would he think if she did? And he would expect explanations if she asked him to make Bill his heir. What explanations could she offer?

Her head was burning but her body felt as though it were slowly freezing into ice. Her eyes and cheeks stung and she felt slightly dizzy. The car skidded and she almost lost control of the wheel.

She became so intent on driving, listening to the warning knock in the engine, that it wasn't until she had passed the Adams house that she remembered she was supposed to have gone there to see a sick baby. There was no time to stop now.

Approximately one million American motor cars were sold in 1929 outside the United States, 209,326 of these going to Canada. Next to Canada, Australia was our best customer, taking 78,864.

The federal government operates approximately 300,000 motor vehicles, and spends about $10 a vehicle each year for replacement parts and equipment.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Bath Powder Can Now Be Sprayed On the Body

The modern bathroom shelf is equipped with a number of luxurious items that go far toward making bathing for a body pleasure. Soap, toilet water, body cream, bath powder and bath salts are put up in matching colors and in glamorous containers which add beauty to the bathroom.

For instance, bath powders now come in atomizers. Instead of using a large puff to dust the powder on the body, one simply squeezes a rubber bulb a few times and the skin is at once covered with a thin, even film of powder.

Toilet water bottles are made with air-tight stoppers that eliminate evaporation. Lotions or balms come in bottles with tops that screw on firmly so that they can be jerked open without fear of ruining clothes in the same bag.

Speaking of body balms, there are many goods ones in all cosmetic departments and they are to the skin on the body what hand lotion is to the hands.

The people of the United States pay about twice as much for freight on automobiles and trucks as they pay for freight on sugar, canned goods, or flour.

Detroit's Winning Streak Broken—Still Leads American

DETROIT.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox broke the Tigers' winning streak in the final game of their series here Sunday, defeating Detroit, 3 to 1, but failing to dislodge it from its league-leading position. Sunday's defeat left the Tigers with a one-game edge over the Yankees.

The Tigers out-hit the Sox, 9 to 6, but the latter timed their blows more advantageously. Charlie Gehringer, who has been doing some heavy hitting for the Tigers lately, was able to get only one safety off the delivery of Sam Jones, although the Detroit second baseman made three trips to the plate. Dykes, with three hits in four times up, topped the day's hitting list.

Chicago got its first run in the third when Chamberlin rapped out a homer with no one on base. The other two runs came in the seventh when Rowe suffered a momentary lapse and walked Bonura and Simmons, first two men up. After an infield out, Dykes singled to left to bring in the runners.

Detroit's lone score came in the eighth as a result of singles by Cochran and Goslin and Rogell's fly to Uhalt.

The game was featured by a fine hurling duel between Jones and Rowe, the latter having a slight edge from the statistical standpoint but losing the game through the two passes he issued in the seventh.

The public is cordially invited to hear the recital.

Others

We need the lives of others to make our own complete. It takes the smiles of neighbors to light our humble street; And all the joys we treasure would cold and sordid be Unless another waited to share our victory.

Fame were an empty glory without the friends who praise. From others comes the splendor which crowns the toil of days; There's none so great or humble but what at night must find That with the lives of many, his life is intertwined.

Hope Swamped by Greyhounds, 13-6

Atlanta Beats Tremen, Takes Lead in Two States League

While the Atlanta Rabbits were beating the Tremen, 13 to 6, to take top position in the Two States League, Hope lost to Southwestern Greyhounds Sunday afternoon in State Line Park at Texarkana, 13 to 8.

Taking over interests of Burton-Ward, the Southwestern club got off to a good start in its initial game, pounding out 18 hits off Summerville and Madison.

The best Hope could do was to muster six hits off Phillips.

Erratic fielding on the part of both teams, played a big part in the scoring. Hope making six errors and Southwestern seven.

Gordon, first baseman, was a big factor in the Southwestern triumph, contributing five safe blows out of five trips to the plate.

The Atlanta-Tremen contest was played at Atlanta. The largest crowd of the season packed the Atlanta park to view the game. It was the first time the Tremen have been forced to relinquish first place since the league's opening.

Hope will play three games this week, one away from Hope and two here. The schedule:
Thursday—Hope at Atlanta.
Friday—Tremen at Hope.
Sunday—Atlanta at Hope.

HERE AND THERE

we find that 60 per cent of our cotton is sold to foreign countries—and about 40 per cent of our meat, although I am not quite certain on the percentage of meat.

When we consider how heavily the cotton and meat business depend on the markets in Europe, South America and Asia, and when we consider the recent relations between the United States and those other continents, we realize that our future prosperity depends to a large extent on President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull in their attempt to make new trade treaties.

The passage of the reciprocal tariff law, enabling Mr. Roosevelt to revise our tariffs downward in exchange for larger acceptance of American exports, stands out as the greatest potential accomplishment of the administration.

The Blue Eagle, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and all the rest of the alphabet soup may be necessary for our domestic trade during the emergency—but our only assurance that the emergency itself will ever pass away lies in the course of events already opened by Mr. Roosevelt and his lower tariff proposals.

The Alethean Sunday school class of First Baptist church, will hold its regular monthly business and social meeting at the church Tuesday night at 7:30.

The Wilcox LAXATIVE for Busy People

Just as autos have replaced horses, science has developed and proven a new, more thorough and prompt-acting laxative called Peen-a-mint. Peen-a-mint is the delicious chewing gum laxative. It contains a laxative ingredient regularly prescribed by physicians. Peen-a-mint is better than old-fashioned laxatives, because it causes no cramping, no griping, no "full" action without shock or irritation to even the delicate digestive organs of children. The prompt, gentle but complete action of Peen-a-mint does not interfere with usual duties. Rid your system of constipation's headaches and sluggishness. "Delay" is dangerous—chew Peen-a-mint for constipation, 15c and 25c at druggists everywhere.
